"A city that is compact together." The description of Jerusalem in the 122d Psalm applies as strongly today. This aerial view looks north from above a onetime no man's land. Shrines sacred to Judaism, Christianity, and Islam crowd the 4,000-year-old city.

Jerusalem became a focus of Israel's history about 1000 B.C., when King David captured a Canaanite city (within the chart's dashed line) and made it his capital.

After David's son Solomon was anointed king near Gihon Spring (I), he built a splendid Temple on a huge platform. In 587 B.C. the Babylonians razed it, but by the time of Christ,
