1 ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several 2 States within seven years after the date of its submission
3 for ratification:

4 “ARTICLE —

5 “SECTION 1. The people of the United States shall 6 have the power to propose and enact laws in accordance 7 with this article, except with respect to carrying out the 8 powers granted to Congress in the 11th and 15th clauses
9 of article I, section 8, of this Constitution. This article
10 does not grant the people of the United States the power
11 to propose amendments to this Constitution.

12 “SECTION 2. A law may be proposed by presenting 13 to the President a petition that sets forth the text of the 14 proposed law and contains signatures, collected within the 15 eighteen months prior to such presentation, of registered
16 voters equal in number to 3 percent of the ballots cast 17 in the last general election for President, and which in-18 cludes the signatures of registered voters in each of one-19 fourth of the States equal in number to 3 percent of the 20 ballots cast in the last general election for President in 21 each such State. Within ninety days after such presen-
22 tation, the President shall determine the validity of the 23 signatures contained in such petition through consultation 24 with the appropriate States. Upon a determination that 25 such petition contains the required number of valid signa-

1 tures, he shall certify such petition. He shall then direct 2 that the proposed law be placed on the ballot at the next
3 general election held for choosing Members of the House
4 of Representatives occurring at least one hundred and 5 twenty days after such certification. The Congress shall 6 provide by law reasonable procedures for the preparation
7 and transmittal of such petitions, and for the certification
8 of signatures on such petitions. For the purposes of this 9 section, the term 'State' shall include the District of Co-10 lumbia.

11 "SECTION 3. A proposed law shall be enacted upon 12 receiving a majority of the number of electoral votes. For 13 purposes of this section, each State shall have a number 14 of electoral votes equal to the number of Senators and 15 Representatives to which such State is entitled in the Con-16 gress. The District of Columbia shall have a number of 17 electoral votes equal to the number of Senators and Rep-
18 resentatives to which it would be entitled in the Congress
19 if it were a State, but in no event more than the number 20 of electoral votes of the least populous State. A proposed 21 law shall receive a proportion of the number of electoral 22 votes of each State equal to the proportion of the ballots
23 cast in such State with respect to such proposed law that 24 were cast for approval of such proposed law. In making

1 the computation, fractional numbers less than one-one-
2 thousandth shall be disregarded.

3 “SECTION 4. Any law enacted pursuant to this article 4 shall be a law the same as any other law of the United 5 States, except that any law to repeal or amend a law en-
6 acted pursuant to this article during the 2 years imme-
7 diately following its effective date must receive an affirma-
8 tive rollcall vote of two-thirds of the Members of each 9 House duly elected and sworn. No law, the enactment of 10 which is forbidden the Congress by this Constitution or 11 any amendment thereof, may be enacted by the people
12 under this article.

13 “SECTION 5. The Congress and the people shall have 14 the power to enforce this article by appropriate legisla-15 tion.”.
