

H. R. 4590

AN ACT

Concerning United States efforts to promote respect for internationally recognized human rights in China.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4 This Act may be cited as the “United States China 5 Policy Act of 1994”.

6 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

7 The Congress makes the following findings:

8 (1) The economic, social, political, and cultural 9 welfare of the people of China, who constitute one-10 fifth of the world’s population, is a matter of global 11 humanitarian concern.

1 (2) By virtue of its size, its economic vitality, 2 its status as a nuclear power, and its role as a per-
3 manent member of the United Nations Security
4 Council, China plays a significant role in world af-5 fairs.

6 (3) The United States policy toward China in-7 volves balancing multiple interests, including pro-
8 moting human rights and democracy, securing Chi-9 na's strategic cooperation in Asia and the United 10 Nations, protecting United States national security 11 interests, controlling the proliferation of weapons of 12 mass destruction, promoting a peaceful and demo-
13 cratic transition in Hong Kong, and expanding
14 United States economic contact with China.

15 (4) United States policy toward China must in-16 clude as a key objective the promotion of inter-17 nationally recognized human rights. Specific prior-18 ities and methods should be appropriate to the cir-19 cumstances. Engagement with China rather than its 20 isolation is more likely to foster United States inter-21 ests.

22 (5) The opening of China to the West, the 23 adoption of free market economic reforms, the emer-24 gence of a strong and entrepreneurial economy that 25 ensures the rise of a Chinese middle class; all have

1 led to expanded individual freedom, a weakening of 2 state control over personal expression, access to the 3 media in the United States, Hong Kong, and the 4 West, and major improvements in living standards
5 for the Chinese people.

6 (6) United States policies that encourage eco-7 nomic liberalization and increased contact with the 8 United States and other democracies foster respect 9 for internationally recognized human rights and can 10 contribute to civil and political reform in China.

11 (7) The President's policy statement of May 26, 12 1994, provides a sound framework for expanding
13 and extending the relationship of the United States 14 with China while continuing the commitment of the 15 United States to its historic values. The United 16 States must develop a comprehensive and coherent 17 policy toward China that addresses the complex and 18 fast-changing reality in that country and promotes 19 simultaneously the human rights, diplomatic, eco-
20 nomic, and security interests of the United States
21 toward China.

22 (8) The United States has an interest in a 23 strong, stable, prosperous, and open China whose 24 government contributes to international peace and 25 security and whose actions are consistent with the 1 responsibilities of great power status. Whether those 2 expectations are met will determine the breadth,

3 depth, and tone of the United States-China bilateral 4 relationship.

5 (9) Peace and economic progress in East Asia
6 is best assured through a web of cooperative rela-7 tions among the countries of the region, including 8 China and the United States. The emergence of a 9 militarily powerful China that seeks to dominate
10 East Asia would be regarded as a matter of serious
11 concern by the United States and by other countries
12 in the Asia-Pacific region.

13 (10) Yet China's performance has been uneven 14 on a number of issues of concern to the United 15 States. In particular, the Chinese Government has 16 failed to observe internationally recognized human 17 rights. In this regard the Congress makes the follow-18 ing declarations:

19 (A) The Chinese Government itself has 20 made commitments to observe universal human 21 rights norms.

22 (B) Human rights have universal applica-23 tion and are not solely defined by culture or 24 history.

1 (C) Chinese policies of particular concern
2 to the United States are the criminalization of 3 dissent, the inhumane treatment in prisons, and 4 the serious repression in non-Han-Chinese
5 areas like Tibet.

6 (11) Genuine political stability in China and 7 greater respect for internationally recognized human 8 rights, as well as continued economic growth and 9 stability, will only occur in China as a result of a 10 strengthened legal system (based on the rule of law 11 and property rights), the emergence of a civil soci-12 ety, and the creation of political institutions that are 13 responsive to public opinion and the interests of so-14 cial groups.

15 (12) China has entered a major transition in its 16 political history which will determine the nature of 17 the domestic system, including respect for inter-
18 nationally recognized human rights, and the Chinese 19 Government's foreign policy. The Chinese Govern-20 ment should accelerate the process of reform of all 21 aspects of Chinese society.

22 (13) Existing official bilateral and multilateral 23 institutions provide useful venues for engagement
24 with China concerning the rule of law, civil society, 25 respect for internationally recognized human rights,

1 and political institutions that provide humane and 2 effective governance.

3 (14) American nongovernmental and business
4 organizations, in their various forms of engagement
5 in China, have contributed in that country to the ini-6 tial emergence of civil society, the strengthening of 7 the legal system, and the expansion of economic au-8 tonomy.

9 SEC. 3. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF 10 UNITED STATES POLICY.

11 Congress affirms the President's policy and makes 12 the following recommendations for the conduct of United 13 States policy toward China:

14 (1) The United States should continue a steady
15 and comprehensive policy of pressing for increased 16 Chinese adherence to international norms, especially 17 those concerning internationally recognized human 18 rights.

19 (2) Of particular concern to the United States
20 are the following:

21 (A) The accounting and release of political 22 prisoners.

23 (B) Access to Chinese prisoners by inter-
24 national humanitarian organizations.

1 (C) Negotiations between the Chinese Gov-
2 ernment and the Dalai Lama on Tibetan issues.

3 (3) The official dialogue with the Chinese Gov-4 ernment on human rights issues should continue and 5 be intensified.

6 (4) As he considers appropriate, the President
7 should use other available modes of official inter-
8 action with China to pursue initiatives that are rel-9 evant to promoting increased respect for human 10 rights in China.

11 (5) The United States should expand broadcast-12 ing to China, through the Voice of America and 13 Radio Free Asia.

14 (6) The United States should work through 15 available multilateral fora, such as the United Na-
16 tions Human Rights Commission, to express con-17 cerns about human rights in China and to encourage 18 Chinese adherence to, and compliance with, inter-
19 national human rights instruments. At all appro-20 priate times, the United States should work toward 21 and support joint actions to address significant 22 problems. In particular, the United States should 23 seek to secure the participation of other govern-
24 ments in overtures to secure the accounting and re-25 lease of political prisoners, to encourage access to

1 Chinese prisoners by international humanitarian or-
2 ganizations and negotiations between the Chinese
3 Government and the Dalai Lama.

4 (7) Where possible, the United States should 5 take further steps to foster in China the rule of law, 6 the creation of a civic society, and the emergence of 7 institutions that provide humane and effective gov-8 ernance.

9 (8) To better carry out the recommendation in 10 paragraph (7), the Secretary of State should encour-
11 age United States posts in China to increase report-12 ing on the human rights situation, the rule of law, 13 civil society, and other political developments in 14 China, and to increase appropriate contacts with do-15 mestic nongovernmental organizations.

16 (9) United States non-governmental organiza-
17 tions should continue and expand activities that en-18 courage the rule of law, the emergence of a civic so-19 ciety, and the creation of institutions that provide 20 humane and effective governance.

21 (10) When considering the termination of the 22 suspensions of United States Government activities
23 enacted in section 902(a) of the Foreign Relations 24 Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1990 and 1991, the 25 President should explore whether such terminations

1 could be used to elicit specific steps by the Chinese
2 government to enhance respect for internationally 3 recognized human rights or correct abuses of such 4 rights.

5 SEC. 4. UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PROGRAMS SUP-
6 PORTING HUMAN RIGHTS IN CHINA.

7 (a) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—Concerning the pro-
8 motion of human rights in China, it shall be the policy
9 of the United States to promote the following objectives:

10 (1) An effective legal system, based on the rule 11 of law.

12 (2) Respect for internationally recognized
13 human rights.

14 (3) The emergence of civil society.

15 (4) The creation of institutions that provide hu-
16 mane and effective governance.

17 (b) FACTORS.—In determining how to carry out the 18 objectives stated in subsection (a), the President should 19 consider the following factors:

20 (1) The circumstances under which it is appro-
21 priate to provide support to organizations and indi-
22 viduals in China.

23 (2) The circumstances under which it is appro-
24 priate to provide financial support, including 25 through the following means:

1 (A) Directly by the United States Govern-
2 ment.

3 (B) Through United States nongovern-
4 mental organizations which have established a 5 sound record in China.

6 (3) The extent to which the objectives of sub-7 section (a) should be promoted through exchanges, 8 technical assistance, grants to organizations, and 9 scholarships for advanced study in the United 10 States.

11 (4) How to assure accountability for funds pro-
12 vided by the United States Government.

13 (c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR FIS-
14 CAL YEAR 1995.—

15 (1) Of the amounts authorized to be appro-
16 priated for education and cultural exchange pro-17 grams of the United States Information Agency for 18 fiscal year 1995, up to $1,000,000 is authorized to 19 be available for programs to carry out the objectives 20 of subsection (a).

21 (2) In addition to such amounts as may other-22 wise be made available for broadcasting to China for 23 fiscal year 1995, of the amounts authorized to be 24 appropriated for international broadcasting for fiscal

1 year 1995, an additional $5,000,000 may be used
2 for broadcasting to China .

3 SEC. 5. INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN ORGANIZATIONS.

4 It is the sense of Congress that, in the event that 5 international humanitarian organizations undertake ac-6 tivities in China related to the treatment of prisoners, the 7 President should make available an additional contribution 8 to those organizations to support such activities.

9 SEC. 6. PRINCIPLES TO GOVERN THE ACTIVITIES OF 10 UNITED STATES BUSINESS IN CHINA.

11 (a) IN GENERAL.—Congress endorses President Clin-
12 ton’s efforts to work with the leaders of the United States 13 business community to develop voluntary principles that 14 could be adapted by United States companies doing busi-
15 ness in China to further advance human rights and com-
16 mends United States companies that have previously 17 adopted such principles or are considering taking such ac-18 tion.

19 (b) OTHER COUNTRIES.—Congress urges the Presi-20 dent to encourage other governments to adopt similar 21 principles to govern the activities of their business organi-
22 zations with activities in China.

23 SEC. 7. PERIODIC REPORTS.

24 Not more than 180 days after the date of the enact-25 ment of this Act and annually for the 2 subsequent years,

1 the President shall submit to the Speaker of the House
2 of Representatives and the Chairman of the Committee
3 on Foreign Relations of the Senate, a report (in a classi-4 fied form in whole or in part as necessary) which reviews
5 for the preceding 12-month period those activities sup-6 ported by the United States Government to promote the 7 objectives stated in section 4(a).

8 SEC. 8. COMMISSION ON LAW AND SOCIETY IN CHINA.

9 The President is authorized to establish a United 10 States commission on law and society in the People's Re-
11 public of China to undertake the following responsibilities
12 and such other duties as the President considers appro-13 priate:

14 (1) To monitor developments in China with re-15 spect to the following:

16 (A) The development of the Chinese legal 17 system.

18 (B) The emergence of civil society.

19 (C) The development of institutions that 20 provide humane and effective governance.

21 (2) To engage in an ad hoc dialogue with Chi-
22 nese individuals and nongovernmental organizations 23 who have an interest in the subjects indicated in 24 paragraph (1).

1 (3) To report to the President and to the Con-
2 gress the commission's findings regarding the sub-
3 jects identified in paragraph (1) and its discussions
4 with Chinese individuals and organizations concern-
5 ing those subjects.

6 (4) To make recommendations to the President
7 on United States policy toward China in promoting 8 the objectives identified in section 4(a).

9 (5) To assess and report to the President and 10 the Congress on whether the creation of a United 11 States-China Commission on Law and Society would 12 contribute to the objectives identified in section 4(a).

Passed the House of Representatives August 9, 1994.
